Bryce Professorship of Law
Announced With Prof.
Smith in Chair.

Establishment of an Institute of Public Health under the bequest of the late Joseph R. DeLamar and of a Bryce professorship in the Law School were announced at Columbia University yesterday. Promotions and appointments to the teaching staff were also made known.

The new professorship, in memory of Lord Bryce, has been given to Prof. Munroe Smith, now professor of Roman law and comparative jurisprudence.

Payment by the executors of the DeLamar estate to the university to establish the DeLamar Fund for the benefit of the School of Medicine, amounting to $777,772.45, was the largest single item in the gifts to Columbia during 1920-'21, totaling $2,190,289.85, and bringing the aggregate since 1890 to a record total of more than $42,000,000, not including the Eno bequest, which will mean an addition of about $4,000,000 to Columbia's endowment.

The new Institute of Public Health will be primarily for research and the training of research workers, but it will offer instruction to students of medicine and others, and, as Mr. DeLamar's will provides, will engage in giving wide publicity in popular form to the results of scientific investigation. Dr. Haven Emerson has been appointed professor of public health and administration.

Two Law School designations were announced yesterday. George Canfield, who has been professor of law since 1894, has been designated Dwight professor of law, in succession to Prof. Charles T. Terry, resigned. Ralph W. Gifford, who has been a member of the faculty of law since 1914, has been designated Nash professor of law, in succession to Prof. Nathan Abbott, who retires.

The following associate professors were advanced to full professorships: Robert E. Mayer, engineering drafting; Robert E. Chaddock, statistics; John M. Nelson, organic chemistry.

Dixon Ryan Fox, assistant professor of history, and Ernest L. Scott, assistant professor of physiology, were made associate professors.

Donald E. Lancefield was appointed instructor in mineralogy, in the absence of Prof. Lea McIl. Luquer, on leave. Charles W. Cabene, now curator of minerals in the State Museum of Albany, appointed assistant in mineralogy. Herbert G. Howe, who was graduated at the Union Theological Seminary in 1909, has been appointed director of Earl Hall, and will have charge of the social life and activities of the resident students. He will begin his duties September 1.

A motorcycle with side car, driven by her husband, ran into an automobile owned and driven by Raymond Schwartz of 17 North Washington place, Astoria.

Clenena Yonska, aged 8, of 103 Allen street was killed when struck by a southbound automobile while crossing Essex and Stanton streets. The automobile was driven and owned by Nathan Cass of 673 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, who said the machine skidded on the wet asphalt, causing the accident.
